

EEP 201

Community Economics

3 Credits
Fall Semester
No Prerequisites

Death and taxes are thought to be realities of life we can't do anything about. But in fact there are alternatives and this course is designed to improve your policy analysis skills to predict who gets what.

- LEARN to make sense of competing claims for empowerment and property rights.
- EXAMINE case studies on contemporary issues facing state and local governments like
 - environmental/quality
 - communications
 - transportation
 - waste management
 - food safety
 - collective bargaining
 - privatization
 - welfare
 - housing
 - gender and civil rights

Become a better citizen and policy analyst. Learn by participating in class discussion, writing, and group projects.

For more information contact:
EEP 201 Instructor
Dr. Allan Schmid 355-2266
or Karen Reynolds, Adviser, 432-5298 or Chris Stiles, Adviser, 355-1692